1. According to information received by Rumanians in Lisbon, the Spanish Government has knowingly allowed some 40 former members of the Rumanian Iron Guard to establish themselves in Spain. During November a representative of this group, named GEORGESCU (not the GEORGESCU mentioned in WPI-45 of Sept 12, 1947) came to Lisbon for the express purpose of effecting some agreement with General RADESCU and his group; since RADESCU had left Lisbon at the end of October, GEORGESCU arranged a meeting with IMANINIK. GEORGESCU's argument was that, despite the incompatibility between the totalitarian east of the Iron Guard and the democratic principles which RADESCU's group supported, everybody interested in the recovery of Rumanian independence should work together.

GEORGESCU is described as a former Commercial Attache in the Rumanian Legation in Lisbon during the short time that the Iron Guard Government was in power in Bucharest.

He said that only the Iron Guard could give RADESCU the necessary internal support to bring about a successful revolution to drive Communism out of Rumania; until such time as a revolution could be staged he could offer RADESCU security in communication with Rumania and a means of ingress and egress for secret agents. . . .

This is all the pertinent information on subject in this document.
